Statement of Progressives Accepted by Republicans

Summarized in a supplemental state ment by George W. "progressive" in the regular ranks.

Friends of Candidates Heard. Friends of Senator Weeks, for instance he work might and main for the Massachusetts platform upon which McCall was document ever prepared in the old Bay state? Then former Vice President Fair-state? Then former Vice President Fairbanks' friends declare: "Sure, he is a progressive; didn't he serve as Vice President with the greatest of all progressives—and he hasn't turned reactionary?"

And former Senator Burton's supporters insist that for real blown-in-the-glass progressiveness their candidate cannot be surpassed—if, indeed, equaled.
So with the men who are suggesting Justice Hughes against his wishes. "Why," they say, "there is nothing to it; our man is the original progressive. He started when Governor of New York and has been going strong ever since."
And as for Senator Cummins' advocates, they are absolutely intolerant of any suggestion that he isn't the grandsire of all progressives, the head of the house, leader of the clan.
Whereupon, from out Sangamon county, Illinois, way come loud shouts of "Here, here; don't forget Senator Sherman; he saw it first. All these others are just pikers when it comes to progressivism." Senator Root, alas, appears to be the solitary and alone, looking over the fence while the others clamor for recognition as the genuine straight goods.

Regarded as Warning.

The politicians at the Capitol consider hat yesterday's pronunciamento serves warning upon all candidates, avowed or suggested, that they must produce their union cards at Chicago if they want the favor of the bull moosers. They are gratified, however, at Mr. Perkins' assurance that the moosers do Perkins' assurance that the moosers do not propose to nominate the colonel in their convention and then say to the republicans, "Take him, or we will bolt." This conciliatory policy on the part of the progresives was outlined in The Star last Sunday, on advices reaching here from the bull moose leaders. Taken altogether, the action of the bull moose executive yesterday, coming on top of Col. Roosevelt's support of George M. Bowers, the successful republican candidate for Congress in the ublican candidate for Congress in the econd West Virginia district, is con-trued by republicans here to hold out iveliest hopes of reconciliation of the actions at Chicago.
